

ECONOMIC AND INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

ISSN 0143-831X, e-ISSN 1461-7099

Vol. 47, n. 1, February 2026

Consulta en línea desde Intranet

Editorial

Editorial	3
Lars Magnusson and Jan Ottosson

Papers

Financial hardship while working: A comparison of standard and non-standard workers across Europe	6
Mark Visser, Marleen Damman and Gerbert Kraaykamp
Struggles for co-determination: Anti-unionism, obstruction of works councils and employees' counterstrategies in Germany	30
Markus Hertwig and Oliver Thünken
An old recipe, with a new spice: Union avoidance tactics adopted by organized crime when expanding in new territories	52
Anna Mori, Marco Guerri, Giovanni Radaelli and Federica Cabras
Employer strategies for undermining migrants' power resources: Evidence from the Danish construction sector	78
Charlotte Hooper Overgaard and Laust Høgedahl
The idea of economic democracy in Czechoslovakia in the 1960s: Its proponents, predecessors, and critique	97
Marián Sekerák
Organizational restructuring, precarious employment and work intensification: Women managers' experience of work under neoliberalism	119
Catherine Farrell, John Hassard and Jonathan Morris
'We've not breached our side of the contract': Broken employment bargains and in-work poverty in the financialised hospitality sector	150
Victoria Walker and Ian Cunningham
The Global Union Federations and their affiliates: Constrained agency in action	173
Michele Ford and Michael Gillan
Regulatory influence on the overall quality of platform work: Lessons from the Chilean context	196
Daina Bellido de Luna
Workers' resistance to managerial silencing: A comparative study of temporary agency and platform workers' voice in a developing context	218
Kabiru Oyetunde, Rea Prouska and Aidan Mckearney
Worker participation under digitalisation: Structure, power and varieties of union influence in two manufacturing sectors	245
Mathieu Dupuis and Alexis Massicotte
Firm-level technology implementation and finding a new job: The moderating role of industry unionization	271
Jannes ten Berge and Zoltán Lippényi	